Contrast is often the basis for visual interest, and this buffet is a prime example of this maxim. The simplified neo-classical design is enlivened by the use of natural open caning on the doors and sides of this charcoal toned cabinet. The interior features shelves, making this a practical and stylish choice when storage is required, and is painted a light color to emphasize the airy nature of the weaving. Perfect for a dining room, this handsome cabinet would also work beautifully as a media console.
